

“THE COMMANDMENTS FOR MONKS” IN THE KORMČAJA AND IN MISCELLANIES

(Summary)

The article is devoted to the “Rules for monks” who are part of the Kormčaja and of Old Russian miscellanies. The earliest copies of the Rules are contained in a miscellany of the late 12th – early 13th century (Russian State Library, collection of the Trinity-Sergius Lavra, № 12) and in the Novgorod Kormčaja of 1280 (GIM, Synodal Collection, № 132). The different redactions of the Rules are determined and the general principles according to which the Rules were reworked in the Novgorod Kormčaja are defined. The article also presents the long history of this text in Old Russian miscellanies.

Galina Barankova,
The V. V. Vinogradov Russian Language Institute - RAS